INTRODUCTION

*Alhamdulillah &
Congratulations!*

You just made it to another phase of your life - the CAMPUS LIFE! Being a university student means you're up for a tougher challenge in life, but the journey will definitely be a wonderful one. Some of you may experience mixed feelings about this, it can be exciting and scary at the same time. That is normal, because this is a new experience for you and perhaps you still do not know what to expect. Fret not, this Campus Survival Kit by CCSC will be your guide to navigate through your journey as a university student. The Campus Survival Kit is an e-book which consists of a number of topics that will help you learn and adapt with your new life as a university student.

In sya Allah.

QUOTES FROM IIUM PEERS

Nurul Iffah Alia Binti Omar
KICT (Computer Science),
Final Year

Enjoy your campus life. Get to know people. Get new experience. It's okay to take it slow as long as you slay. Goodluck!

Welcome to all new students! Take this opportunity to grow into someone better. Make new friends, learn new things, explore and be active. Take the challenge that may come ahead and make mistakes while striving to be the best. Lastly, be yourself and enjoy your curious self. May Allah guide you throughout your university life.

BASIC BLACKBOARD FOR CAMPUS SURVIVAL

Spend your free time with self-care activities

Enjoy your free time with the activities that can help you to release and cope with stress such as work out, gardening, play with your pet, get along with your friends and so on. Self-care may help you to produce positive emotions, boost your motivation and self-esteem.

Get along with people naturally

Be open to approach and initiate communication with new people. You also have to be open and flexible in building new relationship with people around you such as your roommates and classmates.

Pack your patience

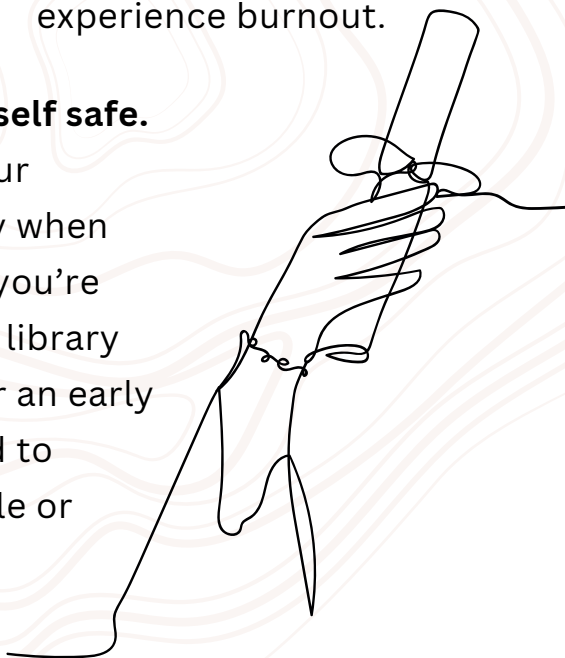

Adjusting yourself to new environment, different study system and meet up with new friends can be very challenging. Give time to yourself and just go with the flow. Things will get better as time passes by.

Organize your daily schedule

Prepare your to-do list and organizer so that you can sort out your activities and routine effectively. Set a realistic plan or a practical to-do list that is flexible enough so you don't experience burnout.

Know how to keep yourself safe.

Always be vigilant of your surroundings, especially when you're walking alone. If you're planning to study in the library till late at night or go for an early morning jog, get a friend to tag along regardless male or female.

ADJUSTMENT TO NEW LIFE

Transitioning into campus life may test different aspects of your life.

You are expected to be more independent now as you have a more flexible schedule. Not just that, you have to adjust to a new environment and people around you.

There are few issues that you may encounter when adjusting to this new life.

Homesickness

This is a common issue faced by the freshmen, especially those who have never been away from home or family before. For the first few days, or maybe weeks, the feeling of missing home can be a bit overwhelming. You need to reassure yourself that it is normal to feel this way, and you will be able to cope with it better as time goes by.

Academic Pressure

Studying at the university level is not the same as high school. Realistically, the things you study will get a bit more difficult as you move one step ahead. Besides, your academic performance is not graded the same way as how it was back then in high school. These can be too much to grasp in the beginning, but you will be able to manage it with the right study plan!

Social Adjustment

Entering campus life will give you the opportunity to meet new people. Though some people look forward to making new connections, this can also be nerve-wracking to some. Instead of putting expectations, judgements, and assumptions, try to free your mind and let yourself experience the new social environment as it is.

NOTE: Remember, these are just temporary issues. Once you are able to adapt and accommodate, you will enjoy the rest of your campus life! However, if you still find it difficult to cope with the stress of adjusting, you may need more support, talk to us!

KNOW YOUR COUNSELLOR!

It is not how much you do, but how much love you put into the doing that matters. People may forget your name, but they will never forget how you made them feel.

SELF-GROOMING

When we talk about grooming, it's not always about being fashionable.

Grooming simply means making yourself look presentable. Being a student who is studying in an international university, grooming is super important. It can boost your self-confidence, and make yourself look decent and proper to others.

Brush your teeth at least twice a day, that is after waking up and before going to bed. Additional care may include using oral wash and also using a mouth spray to keep your breath fresh.

TEETH

HAIR

Make sure your hair is clean and neat. You need to shampoo your hair and brush it well. If you have very dry hair, you can try applying hair oil to manage it.

FACE

The simple facial care routine to keep your face clean are:

1. Cleanse with a good cleanser
2. Moisturise with a moisturizer
3. Apply sunscreen (daytime)

FINGERNAILS

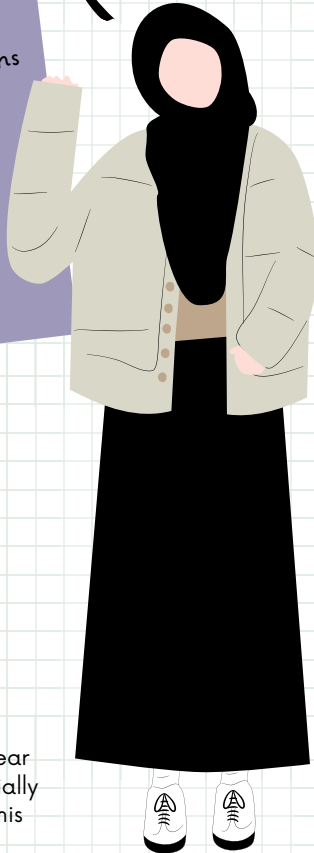

Always keep your nails short or in shape, and clean any dirt on them. Avoid chewing or biting your nails as this will affect the shape of your nails.

HIJAB

There are many different hijab styles that you can try, as long as it is shariah compliant and looks neat. Put on an inner scarf as a base, this is to ensure your hair does not come out of the shawl, and make it easier to insert the pins. Make sure to iron the shawl first before putting it on, and use enough pins to set and secure the shawl on your head.

NOTE: According to medical research, the brain releases endorphins when you indulge in self-grooming. These are natural chemicals responsible for relieving stress and pain.

CLOTHES

Choose an outfit that is shariah compliant, clean, and neat. You may need to iron your clothes if there are a lot of noticeable wrinkles. It is also important to dress according to the day's purpose. For example, if you have a class presentation, you may need to wear formal clothes. On a side note, many stylists suggest that it is ideal to choose an outfit within 3 colors only (excluding black and white).

SHOES

It is recommended to wear closed toe shoes, especially during a formal event. This will make you look more professional, however if you have a reason to not wear one, kindly avoid wearing slippers and opt for sandals. Always wear shoes that fit your size to ensure that you are comfortable at all times.

EXAMPLES OF NEAT & TIDY OUTFIT

BROTHERS:

NOTE: The way you dress and carry yourself play a significant role in having a positive and prosperous mindset. It allows you to create an ethos where you can adopt certain practices that help you in your personality development.

Setting foot in a university will give you a great opportunity to make new friends and connection. You will be able to get to know people from different background and culture. To some people, starting a new friendship is a big challenge, but to others, maintaining it is the problem. However, it is undoubtedly manageable to having the right skills.

Join student clubs or societies of your interest

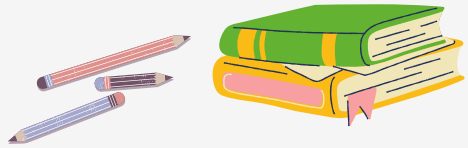

This allows you to find like-minded people easier.

Study or do assignments in a social setting

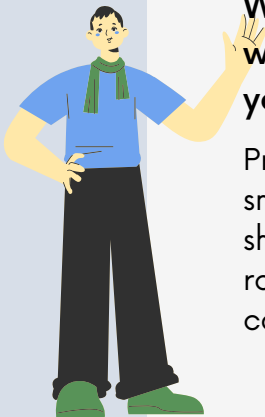

Instead of just staying in your room, try studying or doing your assignments where you can be around others. This creates more opportunities to meet and socialize with new people.

T I P S TO MAKE NEW FRIENDS

Walk around and mingle with the new people around your mahallah and kulliyah

Pro tips: bring along some snacks or candies to share with the new room/floor/coursemates!

NOTE: People with strong friendship will have a better mental and physical health.

MAINTAINING FRIENDSHIPS

Stay in touch

Try to make time for your friends, and keep the interaction frequent, but within appropriate boundaries. Remember, every friendship is different, so you have to have your own pace.

Accept changes

You have to understand that each person is a unique individual who can change over time. Accepting changes can be difficult to deal with, but it is inevitable. Be open to changes and embrace it. You may discover yourself in a new way while you are at it.

NOTE: Studies have found that strong social networks can reduce our risk of premature death more than exercise or dieting alone.

Deal with conflict

It's easier to run away than to really deal with a conflict. However, successfully handling it will lead to a healthier and longer lasting friendship. Discuss and communicate is the best way to manage conflicts.

Support and cherish each other

It is not just supporting each other in times of need, but also celebrate every success that each other has achieved.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS

Communication is a big part of our social life. And being a university student, you cannot escape from working and interacting with other people. Moreover, most classes will grade you for your participation and performance. Hence, communication is a skill that needs to be acquired and polished.

LISTENING

Listening involves our ability to focus on what another person is saying. When we are listening, we are able to grasp the content and message the other person conveys. Try to minimize any distractions when we are listening, such as putting our phone away, and avoid cutting people off in the middle of a conversation. You can encourage the person to elaborate more while listening through simple gestures like saying 'mhhh..', or nod your head.

I'm all ears.

VERBAL AND NONVERBAL COMMUNICATION

In any interaction, it is almost impossible to exclude either verbal or nonverbal communication. These two complement each other during an interaction. Pay attention to your body language when you are talking. Try to keep an open body posture to give the impression that you are approachable. Maintain good eye contact throughout the conversation, and ensure that you are keeping a reasonable personal space with the person you are interacting with.

HUGS!

NOTE: the message in a communication consists of 55% nonverbal, 38% vocal, and 7% word.

EMPATHY

It feels nice when other people can understand you and make you feel comfortable when you are put in a bad situation, isn't it? That is what it means to be empathetic. In other words, it is putting yourself in another person's shoes. Showing and expressing your empathy can keep you in a healthy relationship with others. It also helps to lessen your anger, stress, and frustration towards others. Acknowledging and validating others' feelings are part of showing empathy.

Do you need help?

GIVING FEEDBACK

Communication involves both ways, the receiver and sender. Giving good feedback will show that you were listening attentively during the conversation or discussion. When giving feedback, try to use positive or constructive statements.

What you did was amazing!

ASKING QUESTIONS

Excuse me, do you mind if I ask a question?

Being able to ask good questions can keep the conversation going. This will also allow you to get to know more about the person you are talking to, or the topic that you are discussing about. If you want to gain more information, use open-ended questions instead of closed-ended. You need to make sure to stay on topic and ask relevant questions only. Be sensitive to certain topics, sometimes asking questions may not be a good move, such as asking about personal issues to an acquaintance.

Just like other people on this planet, you have 24 hours to spend per day. And as a university student with many different tasks and responsibilities to manage, 24 hours may sound so little if you do not plan your time accordingly. However, once you are able to master the art of time management, you may be surprised that you can even spare some time for yourself without thinking about work!

TIME MANAGEMENT

PLAN AHEAD

Make sure you start every day with a clear idea of what you need to do – what needs to get done that day.

SETTING SMART GOALS

- S SPECIFIC
What do I want to accomplish?
- M MEASURABLE
How will I measure the achievement of my goal?
- A ACHIEVABLE
What are the specific steps to reach my goal?
- R RELEVANT
How does this goal relate to my long-term goals and interests?
- T TIME-BASED
When do I want to complete my goal?

SET GOALS CORRECTLY

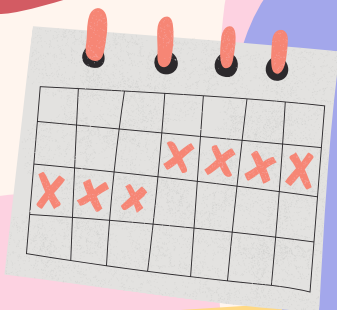

Set goals that are achievable and measurable. Use the SMART method when setting goals.

NOTE: Researches have shown a correlation between time management and mental health. Good time management positively affect academic achievement, job performance, and overall wellbeing while lowering distress.

PRIORITIZE WISELY

Prioritize tasks based on importance and urgency. Look at your daily tasks and determine which are important and urgent.

		URGENT	NOT URGENT
IMPORTANT	DO	Do it now.	DECIDE Schedule a time to do it.
	DELEGATE	Who can do it for you?	DELETE Eliminate it.
NOT IMPORTANT

ORGANIZE YOURSELF

Utilize your calendar for more long-term time management. Write down the deadlines for projects, or for tasks that are part of completing the overall project.

REMOVE NON-ESSENTIAL TASKS/ACTIVITIES

It is important to remove excess activities or tasks. Determine what is significant and what deserves your time.

A pink alarm clock with a yellow display and two yellow bells, positioned to the right of the first section header.

SET A LIMIT TO COMPLETE A TASK

Setting time constraints for completing tasks helps you be more focused and efficient. Making the small extra effort to decide on how much time you need to allot for each task can also help you recognize potential problems before they arise.

NOTE: Time management training has a significant positive predictive effect on sleep quality and a significant negative predictive effect on anxiety and depression.

A pink mug with a white heart on it, filled with orange liquid, with three blue steam lines rising from it, positioned to the left of the second section header.

TAKE A BREAK BETWEEN TASKS

When doing a lot of tasks without a break, it is harder to stay focused and motivated. Allow some downtime between tasks to clear your head and refresh yourself.

STRESS MANAGEMENT

As a university student, there will be times that you feel very stressed due to the amount of workload and responsibilities that you have to carry throughout your semesters.

Stress is a way for your body to respond to things that need action or attention. Experiencing stress is normal, and the most important part is how you respond to it.

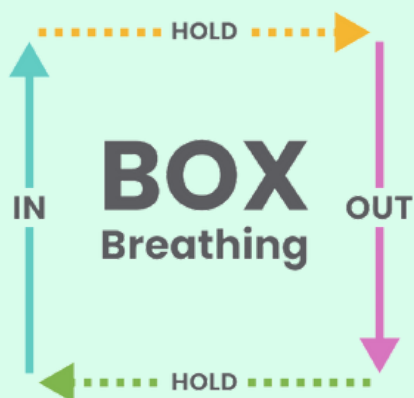

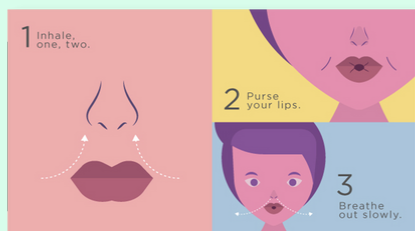

DEEP BREATHING

Breathing is the most basic thing that everyone does, but is not fully aware of. When you are stressed, your thinking may be cloudy and you may not also be breathing properly. This can affect the exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide in your body, which leads to a number of physical symptoms, such as elevated stress and anxiety.

• Pursed lip breathing

1. Relax your neck and shoulder muscles.
2. Inhale slowly through your nose for two seconds with your mouth closed.
3. Purse (pucker) your lips as though you're going to whistle or gently blow on a hot drink.
4. Exhale slowly and gently through your pursed lips for 4 or more seconds.

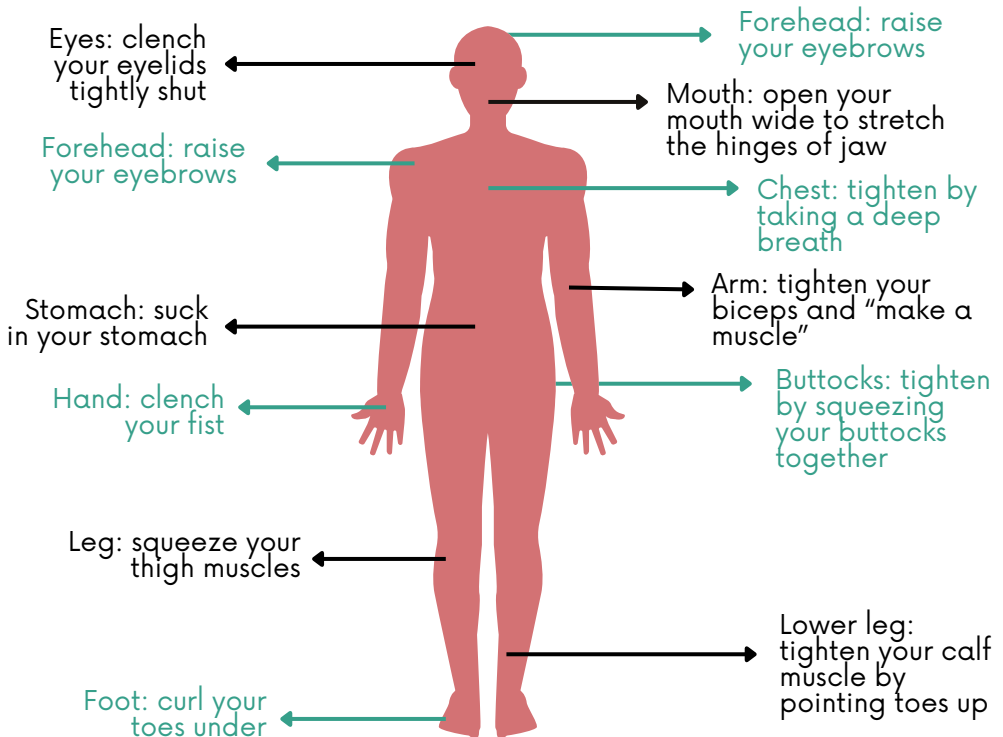

Box breathing •

1. Sit with back supported and feet on the floor.
2. Close your eyes and breathe in through the nose while counting to 4 slowly, feeling the air enter into the lungs.
3. Hold the breath while counting slowly to 4, trying not to clamp the mouth or nose shut.

This is a great technique to relieve stress, which can be used at any time. You need to focus on slowly tensing your muscles for a few seconds, then gradually relaxing the muscles. With practice, you will be able to know the difference between muscle tension and relaxation, and it also helps to make you more aware of your physical sensations.

PROGRESSIVE MUSCLE RELAXATION (PMR)

SUPPORT SYSTEM

Having people who can support you during stressful times can really make a difference.

With a good support system, you will feel more confident and secure to go through the heavy road ahead. However, it is good to expand your social connection and relationship with others so that you can avoid putting a heavy reliance on the same people. You can look for opportunities to build new connections by joining student clubs, or programs organized by the university.

Students who do not get enough rest or sleep will tend to stress more. When you are tired, it is hard for your body and mind to function well. Make sure that you include enough rest and sleep time in your daily schedule. Power naps can also help to recharge your energy in the daytime.

ENSURE ENOUGH REST TIME

PRACTICE HEALTHY LIFESTYLE

A healthy mind comes from a healthy body.

This means that whatever you do to your body can affect your mental health. Therefore, you need to pay attention to your lifestyle, which includes your diet and physical activities. Eating healthy food and exercise regularly can help to combat stress.

NOTE: If you find it too difficult to cope with your stress, perhaps it is best to seek professional help. You can book a counselling session and talk it out with your counsellor.

STUDENT SOCIETY/CLUB INVOLVEMENT

If you are a social butterfly, you will be thrilled to know that there are so many student societies/clubs that you can join on campus. This is the time for you to shine and gain new kills. For those who are more on the introvert side, this is the time for you to build your personality and polish your communication skills.

You can choose to join society/club that matches your interest.

HOW TO JOIN THE RIGHT STUDENT SOCIETY/ CLUB ON CAMPUS

Follow the student society/club's social media

This allows you to get information on their activities, and keep an eye for their new recruitment dates.

Ask around

You can go to the related department office and inquire about the student societies/club of your interest, or ask your senior about their experience.

Attend events or programs in the campus

You can experience how the society/club runs and operates when you join their event or programs, which may spark your interest.

WHAT TO EXPECT IF I JOIN THE STUDENT SOCIETY/ CLUB

A balance between additional responsibilities and FUN!

You'll definitely need to carry additional tasks since student societies/clubs have their own activities and programs planned out for the year, but you'll also enjoy the process!

Time management

You'll need to slot in the society/club's activities into your schedule so that you will not run into time management problem later on.

Meeting new people

The new people you'll meet will not only be the society/club members, but also other students, staff, or external parties who will be working together during a joint program.

KNOW YOUR COUNSELLOR!

- Industrial & organizational-related issues

CAREER PLANNING

As a student, you may have doubts and concerns about your future career path.

With a good career plan, you will be able to achieve an ideal job that suits you. Making the right career choice will also help to improve your overall life satisfaction. Think about it, you will need to spend a lot of time at work, that is about 8 hours long per day. If you enjoy your job, you will appreciate your life more.

What are my values?

This allows you to find the career that suits with your work-life balance definition.

What subjects do I like?

This helps to determine the type of field you will enjoy working in.

What are my skills?

This helps to match you with a job you're qualified to perform.

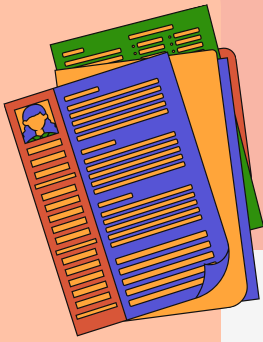

QUESTIONS TO ASK YOURSELF WHEN MAKING A CAREER PLAN

What qualifications do I have?

This will enable you to see the type of career that matches with your level of qualification.

What are my interest?

This helps to narrow down the kind of career you want to pursue.

TIPS TO BUILD A GOOD CAREER PLAN

NOTE #1

Career satisfaction is shown to be positively associated with good quality of life.

NOTE #2

Some of the most common causes of depression related to employment are job insecurity, a lack of work-life balance, a toxic work environment, and work overload.

ACHIEVE GOOD CGPA TO ATTRACT GOOD JOB OFFERS

Some well-established companies and organizations prioritize students who graduated with good academic grade to maximize their talent pool and competitive advantage in the market. Getting good CGPA will give a better opportunity for you to be hired by top companies and organizations.

BUILD STRONG PROFESSIONAL NETWORK

Making connections with other professionals in the field that you want to pursue will help to provide job opportunities or recommendations for future job prospects. Apart from allowing you to put their names as referees on your resume, you can also take the opportunity to learn more about the career and job prospects from them.

GET ACTIVE IN CAMPUS

By joining a lot of students societies or programs on campus, you will learn to build leadership and communication skills. These skills are important to secure your future job interview. Apart from this, you will also be able to collect STAR points for every committee position and programs you have joined, and include them in your resume.

APPLY FOR INTERNSHIP IN THE INDUSTRY OF YOUR INTEREST

Some courses will require the students to go for an internship as part of the curriculum. If you need to, search for companies or organizations that match with your career interests. Then, set a number of learning goals that you want to achieve throughout your internship. Some companies or organizations will hire their intern as permanent staff upon performance level. Hence, doing an internship can also give you opportunity to kick start your career journey.

CAREER TIPS FROM IIUM STUDENT CAREER TEAM (ISCT)

Aisayah Aqilah
AHAS IRKHS, (Psychology),
Year 4

Don't be afraid to change your mind especially if you find that you're not happy in your current path. Steve Job once said, "The only way to do great work is to love what you do".

Hey there! If you want some awesome career tips, I've got you covered. First, explore different subjects and activities to find what really interests you. And don't forget to build a strong network of amazing people! Take on leadership roles, and focus on developing those awesome soft skills. Oh, and make sure to create a killer online presence on platforms like LinkedIn. Career services are your secret weapon for resume writing and job search strategies, so don't hesitate to reach out. All the best!

CAREER TIPS FROM IIUM STUDENT CAREER TEAM (ISCT)

Develop your communication skills no matter what your background is. Although actions speak louder than words, people from different backgrounds won't understand anything you do unless you explain to them
